DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 6 and 11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. A new reference, Shetler, Jr. et al., teaches detecting zero-crossings of an input voltage (i.e. frequency measurements) and subsequently determining the phase shift of the signal.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-3, 6-8 and 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wall (2004/0178641) and Shetler, Jr. et al. (6,917,124). Wall teaches a circuit for preventing islanding in a power system. He teaches monitoring a voltage measurement (356) and determining a phase shift of a generator ([0009]). He goes on to teach comparing the determined phase shift to a threshold phase shift ($\pi/2$) and if the phase shift is greater than the threshold then issuing a command for a disconnect of the generator ([0128]). He also teaches a computer (i.e. processor, memory and input/output unit) for executing the above method of prevention ([0123]). He also teaches disconnecting the generator by an under frequency procedure ([0125]). Wall fails to teach determining the phase shift based solely on sequential frequency measurements. Shetler teaches determining the phase shift of a voltage signal based solely on sequential frequency measurements taken at current and previous zero-crossing points (Col. 1, lines 60-65).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to implement Shetler's method of determining the phase shift into Wall's invention so that the phase shift measurement will be more accurate and not just an estimate, as it was in Wall's invention, and because the measurement will be taken so often (twice a period).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 4, 5, 9, 10, 14 and 15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
